A MAN MAY BE DOWN BUT NEVER OUT

When Thomas Mott Osborne, the New York millionaire, was placed in charge of Sing Sing prison—the most notorious penal institution in the United States today—he inaugurated several new methods which he believed would have a lasting effect upon the criminal and which would bring him to a realization of his downfall. With the inauguration of Mr. Osborne's humane efforts, music was one of the first inducements offered the unfortunates. The effect upon them from this method is now nationwide. What has been tried in Sing Sing has been exemplified in the South by the Salvation Army.

six or seven years ago, visited the Federal prison in Atlanta one Sunday morning to conduct special religious services. During this service Mrs. Crawford sang, "Jesus' Love is Sweeter As the Days Go By." While she was singing, she noticed that a young man was deeply affected by the hymn. Inquiries disclosed the fact that he had been sent to the Federal prison from Washington, D. C., to serve a five-year sentence.

Two weeks after attending the first service of the Salvation Army, he was converted and became one of the firm boosters of the "Brighter Day League," the Salvation Army prison organization. From that time on he was a model prisoner and did everything within his power to spread the Gospel of Faith among his fellow-men. He served his sentence and upon his release came direct to the Salvation Army headquarters in Atlanta and was sent to the Industrial Home on Whitehall St., where he was put to work until a permanent position could be secured for him.

Several days later the same young man was sent to Atlanta to do some shopping for the home. While in one of the largest stores he met a man from Tennessee, who recognized him. He came over to the man who was recently released from the Federal penitentiary and said, "Unless you give me money, I will give you up; you cannot fool me, I know they want you in Tennessee."

That did not alarm the man who wanted to make good. He went to the nearest telegraph station and wired the authorities of Tennessee the following message: "I am ready to give myself up; come and get me." The authorities came to Atlanta and arrested the man who was befriended by the Salvation Army, taking him back to the scene of his crime. He was tried and sentenced to 5 months. He served his sentence and was a free man, forgetting the past and living for the future.

This all happened several years ago. The former convict has proved himself to be a real man and is now on the highway to success, having re-established himself as a responsible citizen of Atlanta. It is this kind of work, done under cover, and other work which cannot be advertised, that has made the Salvation Army the most beloved organization in the country today.

The old slogan, "A man may be down but never out," is well exemplified in the foregoing story.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 22.—Officers and directors of the National Shoe Retailers' Association, in special session here, deny there is any organized profiteering among the retail dealers in the United States.
